is very fashionable just now. "The girl I left behind" is the title of the hour.

The girl who is left behind has a great many things to think of, but it is well to remind her that the pleasure of bicycling will serve to keep her in good health and comparative cheerfulness, and there's no wheel like the ECLIPSE. Come and see it.

Strong Talk at Phoebus Yesterday Morning.

COLORED MEN ANGRY

Barnes Convicted of Larceny from the Person. Prominent Church People in a Bank Breaking Scheme.

Frank Chisman and Washington Diggs, the two men in jail here charged with the abduction of Bessie Gathright, the thirteen-year-old girl who was driven to Newport News and placed in a house of ill fame on Twenty-third street, early yesterday morning, are perhaps unaware of the fact that they were apprehended before 12 o'clock

Monday night Elizabeth City county might have been saved the expense of trailing them to Newport News.

All through the long hours of the night where the disturbed parents were grieving over the loss of their daughter at the hands of men who are in quest of her, it seemed as if a life of shame, agony and ominous words were heard, and it is declared that the appearance of Chisman and Diggs would have led to a speedy trial at the tribunal over which Judge Lynch presides.

The girl was found yesterday afternoon by City Sergeant Miltstead, of Newport News, and Officer Mastin, of Phoebus, in a house of disrepute on Warwick avenue, near Twenty-second street. Diggs drove her from Phoebus to the house of George Fugh, on Twenty-third street, where she remained until she learned that the police were on the lookout for her, when, at the suggestion of Fugh, she took refuge in an adjoining building. It was soon found that the girl was not safe there and another move was made, this time her captors leading her to the house in which Messrs. Miltstead and Mastin found her. Fugh at first denied having anything about the child, and professed to be very much surprised that the officers should call at his place in quest of her. He then, however, told him with aiding in the scheme of abduction brought him to his senses and he quickly told all he knew.

When Bessie reached the courthouse in this city she found her friends waiting for her. Upon seeing her, they broke down and wept pitifully. She is an attractive girl, somewhat precocious physically, and as she appeared yesterday in a becoming frock, which fitted her admirably, she formed a perfect picture, and a flower bedecked hat, drawn down to conceal her tears, she presented a picture worth the study of a clever painter. She told her story in the office of Commonwealth's Attorney Collier, but it would not be proper to make known all that she said. Suffice it to say in which she was induced to forsake her home forms, with other things that are known, a chain of evidence which Chisman and Diggs will find it hard to liberate them on. The case is now in the hands of the Commonwealth's Attorney, but it was the impertinence of Chisman, coupled with promises which will come out upon the trial of the case, that caused her to go away. She did not expect to remain in Newport News, a fact which accounts for her unwillingness to conceal herself from the officers after reaching Fugh's den of infamy in the Rockets. Chisman told her that she should go to Philadelphia, where she would have a fine time and enjoy herself as she had never done before. Chisman had also written her a number of letters in which he addressed her as his dear wife, and she, trusting him, believing that he meant to marry her, replied calling him her dear husband.

Messrs. Hughes and Montague, who have been retained by the two men, yesterday afternoon asked Judge Lee to liberate them on bail. The court, however, declined to do so until they heard the statement of the girl and other witnesses. He will hear argument this morning at 10 o'clock.

BARNES FOUND GUILTY.

He Will Go to Richmond for Two Years' Service.

A. J. Barnes, who claims to hail from Norfolk, was yesterday afternoon convicted of robbing a companion named

E. S. Coles. The offense was committed last Friday night or Saturday morning.

It is hard to tell which, while the two men were on their way from Buckroe in a carriage. Mr. John S. Wise, Jr., saying that the famous New York lawyer defended Barnes and did it well. But the ingenuity of the young man's distinguished sire would have been sorely taxed the effort to find a way of escape for the prisoner. Mr. Collier presented a series of solid, dovetailing facts which Mr. Wise and his wisdom could not overcome.

Coles was robbed of about $20, which, he charged, Barnes took from his person while they were walking from Buckroe. His testimony was corroborated by a colored man who swore that he saw the prisoner in the act of stealing the money. A strong circumstance against Barnes was the fact that the colored man disclaimed having either Coles' money or any of his own, a sum corresponding to that lost by Coles was found on his person.

The apprehension, preliminary hearing, indictment and conviction of Barnes took place within four days. He is a white man.

RESOLVED ON INDEPENDENCE.

Colored Republicans Have Had a Surfeit of Promises.

There seems to be no longer a doubt that leading colored Republicans of this county have resolved to enter next year's political contest with a straight ticket of their own. This information came to the correspondents of the Daily Press from a man whose word may be fully relied upon. Dissatisfaction has been breeding in the ranks of the colored wing of the Republican party for many months. It is claimed that the McKinley administration has not dealt fairly with the negro
